Identifying appropriate course content (including syllabi), faculty credentials, and evaluation and assessment procedures are part of this periodic review.

2. Recruitment of Adjunct Faculty

In order to maintain the quality of instruction necessary to fulfill the educational mission of the college, the BC Executive Vice President and Dean of Faculty (EVPDF) and Dean or Division Chair, in conjunction with the PNC administration's recommendations, will seek persons to fill adjunct positions meeting or exceeding the minimum criteria for the rank of Instructor. The BC EVPDF will then recommend to the BC President whether or not to offer an employment agreement. The appointment of adjunct faculty is subject to adequate enrollment in the adjunct faculty member's course.

3. Adjunct Faculty Evaluation

Instructional evaluation is meant to encourage and assist all full-time and adjunct faculty members to develop and perform to the best of their ability. The overall evaluation of faculty members is conducted each academic term by one or both of the following methods:

a. Online Student Course Evaluation Surveys

The BC College's faculty have developed and approved a Student Course Evaluation Survey that students access online and rate the quality of their learning experience in a particular class. In addition, PNC has created a classroom evaluation survey as well. These surveys are conducted each semester with each respective faculty member receiving an analysis of the students' responses within a timely manner; usually within the semester the surveys are given. The analyses include comparisons of the students' responses in each of the survey items to other courses taught at BC and/or PNC. BC Deans/Division chairs and the PNC administration use this information in helping to determine if the adjunct faculty member is to be asked to teach again and how BC and/or PNC can assist the adjunct in improving his or her instruction.

b. Classroom Observation

The EVPDF and/or the appropriate Dean/Division Chair and/or the PNC administration shall observe an adjunct faculty member in the classroom during a class session. This observation is meant to obtain firsthand information regarding that faculty member's teaching effectiveness in an academic or classroom setting. The specific class and time for this observation is usually decided on, in advance, by agreement between the specific observer and the adjunct faculty member; although, advance notice is not required. The results of this observation are done in writing, a copy of which is forwarded to the instructor.

Article 9. Advertising and Student Recruitment

Student recruitment into courses that are cross-listed and eligible for dual enrollment is carried out through joint activities by PNC and BC including the creation of brochures and other informational recruitment materials, sending recruiters to appropriate events and locations such as powwows, high school, College Fairs, etc., and provide information to interested individuals on each institution's website. BC's Assistant Vice President for Enrollment Management routinely coordinates recruitment activity with PNC's President and staff for these courses.

Article 10. Admissions Processing of Dual-Enrolled Students

Admissions to cross-listed, dual-enrolled courses is on a rolling admissions basis. The PNC Director of Admissions submits applicants to BC's Director of Admissions for approval and enrollment into these courses. BC then follows its standard enrollment procedures in processing these applications. Students accepted into these courses are sent a Letter of Acceptance issued jointly by BC and PNC and issued an official Schedule of Enrolled Courses.

Article 11. Awarding of Course Credit

Students successfully completing the requirements for courses that are cross-listed and eligible for dual enrollment are sent a BC Grade Report identifying the grade received in the course(s). The appropriate amount of academic course credit(s) is then transcribed by BC and PNC on an official document bearing the seals of BC and PNC.

Article 12. Articulation Agreement Liaison

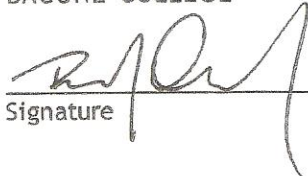

Each institution will appoint a liaison(s) to represent his/her institution to the other institution in order to facilitate good communication and coordination in carrying out the provisions identified in this agreement. The individuals appointed to serve as BC's liaisons are Dr. Dusty Delso, Assistant Vice President for Enrollment Management and Dr. Pete Coser, Assistant Vice President for the Center for American Indians. Ms. Staci Glyckherr, Director of Admissions, will serve as the liaison from PNC.

Article 13. Board of Trustee Representative
